

Improving the clarity of the water in the dams

lake

The dams are full, so water is flowing down their spillways.

dam

Valves will be opened for up to four hours to release clay-coloured water from the bottom of the dams. This will improve the clarity of the water stored in the dams.

As the dams already have water flowing down their spillways, the opening of the valves will have little impact on the depth of the streams. However, this will be closely monitored.

stream